Dear Bob:

We may not be a large school but with the degree of activity that was required for the visiting committee we could have easily had a nightmare without your careful and thorough planning and organization. It was a long time ago that I appointed you to the Steering Committee because I anticipated the need to have someone with your high degree of organizational skills. The credit for insuring that the right people were at the right places at the right times goes to you. Without your careful planning well before the visiting committee arrived, we would have not been able to adequately address the many demands made upon us during those four days.

I know I speak for everyone who was called upon to attend a meeting in thanking you for making it clear where we were supposed to be. Jean Kenney, the chairperson of the visiting committee, made special mention to me of how impressed she was with this aspect of the visitation. Thanks for your help in this and every regard relating to our evaluation.

Sincerely yours,

Michael F. Piccirillo
