

MCC Historian Gains Post As Yale Fellow

WATERBURY — Dr. Richard T. Nolan, associate professor of history at Mat-tatuck Community College (MCC), has been appointed a Research Fellow for 1975-76 at Yale University.

A Bristol resident and part-time vicar of St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Ban-am, Nolan will be involved at Yale in studies of medical ethics and of American thought during the summers of 1975 and 1976, and weekly during the school year.

Nolan earned a B.A. from Trinity College, an M.Div. from the Hartford Seminary Foundation, an M.A. in religion from Yale, and a Ph.D. at New York University.

He is editor of the Diaconate Now, a publication on historical theology.
